

Let's not make a bad situation worse

Don't abandon New York's troubled youths Closing group homes will take away their safe refuge

The NYS Executive Budget proposal calls for eliminating three group homes, run by the state Office of Children and Family Services.

We need to stop this misguided Executive Budget proposal.

These homes provide a safe refuge for the state's troubled youths in Brooklyn, Mount Vernon and Gloversville.

The state Assembly has voted to keep all of these homes open, and the Senate has voted to keep the home in Gloversville open.

We are more than half-way there.

Now, we just need to make sure when the state's final budget is adopted, our legislators don't abandon New York's troubled youths.

Call your legislators at 1-877-255-9417 and tell them New York's troubled youths need a safe refuge from the streets and abuse.

Keep funding for the state-operated OCFS group homes in the final state budget.
